In order to run this, on visual studio you would just have to open the file, make sure that the pthread library is installed, otherwise it won't allow to run because it won't recognize the pthread library when you include it. Then you would have to click the start without debugging button or on your keyboard press ctrl and f5. On replit, you can just press the play button and then it execute and run.